

Hydroelectric energy is produced when the potential energy in the pool of water in the reservoir is conveyed through the penstock (pipe). This force created by the moving water spins the turbine and generator which produces electricity.

The project includes two generators. Pictured here is the 7.2 megawatt unit.